Mrs. H. Robert Wells, English Market, Tuesday Eve.
Edm., writes:

"I was troubled with nervous dyspepsia—so much so that there were a great many things I could not eat at all on account of the distressed feeling afterwards. I used many different remedies, but they did not succeed. Finally I tried Dr. Cass's Nerve Food and Kidney-Liver Pills, and was supplied of the relief this combination of pills gave me in such a short time."

Young Widow and Two Children Get $15,000 Damages From Rly.

Decision is Handed Down by Mr. Justice Walsh Against E.D. & S.O. Railway—Fatal Accident Took Place on Joint Section of Railway When Speeder and Velocipede Collided.

Mrs. Emily Caplar, an infant under the law, being not yet twenty years of age, the wife of the late Thomas Caplar, who was killed a year ago in the E.D. & S.O. railway accident, has been awarded the handsome sum of $15,000 by the decision of Mr. Justice Walsh in the Supreme court, in a legal judgment which has just been handed down.

The deceased, Thomas Caplar, on behalf of whose widow and the two infant children action was brought, was a section foreman employed by the E.D. & S.O. railway and was killed by a collision which caused his death took place on a joint section of the railway. The evidence as to how the collision came to be travelling over the line at the time of the accident was very meagre, consisting only of portions of the examination for discovery of J. A. McGee, the manager of the Dunvegan company, the evidence on the point is that Kusk who was driving the locomotive in the yards without a light on a very dark night when he met with a collision with the other speeder. This the judge held to be negligent and made the company liable.

How the deceased Caplar came to be on the tracks with his ill-fated speeder is related in definite evidence on behalf of the plaintiffs. On the morning of the day in question one, Irwin, the claims agent of the West-ern Railway company, was at Lac La Poudre, the then northern terminus of that company's road, on the business of the company, when he was ordered by wire to report on the morning of the day in question to the manager's office in Edmonton. The only train for the city that day had been received the wire had left. The only way he could reach Edmonton in time in obedience to instructions was by way of the speeder. He procured a written order from the roadmaster directed to all section foremen to carry him from section to section in this way. He proceeded from going to gang until at mile 14 on the Western railway, Caplar, the deceased, assumed control of the speeder on the last lap of the journey. They were in the Dunvegan yards approaching the station when the collision with the velocipede took place. It was then nearly 1 o'clock and the night was dark. Irwin was seated in the front of the speeder carrying a lighted lantern on his knee. There was no light or danger signal on the velocipede. Irwin was the only eye-witness of the accident and in his evidence declared that all he saw was the third or the guide wheel of the velocipede coming straight at him in the air, and he shouted and jumped as the collision took place.

In the result the defendants are in my judgment liable for damages," said Mr. Justice Walsh in his long and exhaustive decision on the case. "I have heard the evidence with great reluctance. That the defendants could be held liable for such an occurrence as this is upon a tremendous hardship upon them and if I could have freed them from it I would gladly have done so, and here, however, to administer the law as I understand it, regardless of my sympathy, and as in my opinion the

The woman's face was pinched and drawn and the police are making inquiries of the husband about the possibility of his wife having been poisoned to draw from his statement doing a little shopping about 6 o'clock. He had gone to work at 7 o'clock and had not worked for the past 12 weeks. He had gone to work during the summer to get work but his wages had not been paid. He could not send her money and she and the two boys had to get relief.

Questioned as to the point Mrs. Panjo, the deceased's sister, stated that she had done what she could to relieve the heart pains and that she if he were not going to send for a doctor and that his reply was that he was well and easier and that there was no need. She further stated that the wife had left some several times without notifying his wife as to his whereabouts and the deceased was called about it. Mrs. Panjo further stated that the police often supply them with food.

In the meantime, the police think call for an investigation.

Amateur Association Also Rules Governing Outplayers Now Permitting Them to Go on Their Knees—Much Discussion of Question of Changing Amateur Rule—Intermediates Admitted to the Allan Cup Playoffs

PORT ARTHUR, Ont., Nov. 20.—Owing to special circumstances in the small towns of Alberta and British Columbia the executive of the Canadian Amateur Hockey association, at its concluding session here tonight, advanced the residence rule in these provinces for this season from August 3 to October 15, to allow the teams to participate in the Allan cup play-offs.

Intermediate teams were made eligible to compete for and hold the Allan cup. This decision by the executive will cover cases such as the Ontario Hockey association, Northern Ontario Hockey association, and Manitoba Hockey association, which have been subject to much conjecture in the past.

Substitutes in various branch games may number three, it was decided, but in Allan cup games only two substitute players will be allowed.

The biggest change in the playing rules made today was that which will allow a goal keeper to go on to his knees, lie down in the net, or stop the puck in any way he wishes, the only limitation being that after stopping it, he must not throw it.

The Manitoba suggestion to revert to the two thirty-minute periods received little favor and was not adopted.

In the constitution of each branch were set at $25 a year. PORT ARTHUR, Ont., Nov. 20.—The question of one line of sport to limit players to one line of sport to compete as amateurs in the Allan cup was the subject of much discussion before the executive of the Canadian Amateur Hockey association, which is in session in Port Arthur today.

W. M. Vanvalkenburg, president of the association, moved a resolution that "a man who is a pro in one line of sport may compete as an amateur in another." The resolution was adopted by a vote of 10 to 2.

Five Styles Illustrated

The Ramsey Ready-to-Wear Dept. reaches the heights of value-giving in this tremendous special purchase dress event which commences with the opening of the doors at nine o'clock Tuesday morning. All of the dresses concerned were purchased AT AN EXTREME REDUCTION from an Eastern manufacturer, who urgently needed money. The quality of the serge and tricotine in them is out of all proportion to the price at which we are able to sell them.

The colors are navy and black. The sizes run from 16 to 44. On sale Tuesday at the stroke of nine—250 Wool Frocks at $7.95.
